

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS POLICY ON PHOTO REPRODUCTION

Special Collections offers photo reproduction as an option in an effort to support scholarly research.

Since our first priority is to preserve/ conserve special collections items, we will not reproduce materials if copying will in any way damage the original. As a general rule, photocopying will be available for most flat materials (photographs, maps, newspapers, and correspondence) if the items are not brittle or fragile.

Books and bound materials pose a problem. It is very difficult to copy a bound item without breaking or weakening the spine. Most of our 19th century periodical collection is bound and unavailable for copying.

We will not reproduce any items that are available in digital format. For specific titles and years see our Digital Special Collections page:
<http://digitalscholarship.spaces.wooster.edu/collections/special-collections/>

We will not reproduce any items from The Wooster Voice since 1940-present is available in digital format and issues prior to 1940 are too fragile to be copied or scanned.

All photocopying requests must be approved by the Special Collections Librarian.

Special Collections staff will handle all approved copy requests. Patrons should expect a 24-hour turnaround time for most requests.

Patrons are encouraged to use digital cameras, digital notepads, or smart phones to take quick images for research purposes. Please set devices to NO FLASH.

Patrons must fill out the Special Collections Photo Reproduction Form for each item requested. (To request digital reproductions, you must first fill out a Permission to Reproduce Form.)
